Arizona history is full of colorful, larger-than-life personalities. Join us to experience "living history" as our speakers portray real people ranging from an army laundress, a Mexican healer and saint, a U.S. Marshal, a school teacher, an Indian agent, a black army officer, and a woman writer/historian.

David Fitzsimmons (Editorial Cartoonist - Tucson)

Phone: 520-573-4234

Email: toonier@azstarnet.com

David Fitzsimmons is the award-winning editorial cartoonist of The Arizona Daily Star. Since 1986, his political cartoons have been nationally recognized for their excellence.

When he's not behind the drawing board he's performing on stage, pen in hand. Fitz began his public speaking career nearly two decades ago when a Rotary Club asked the Arizona Daily Star if they had a luncheon speaker. Drawing the short straw, the cartoonist was "volunteered" for the task. Using his easel and pen he explained just what a Political Cartoonist does each day. And then he turned his inquiring wit and sketching skills to the audience. His chalk-talk was a hit! Part performer, part caricaturist, part satirist, part clown, and part teacher there's no one like him.

Fitzsimmons's quick-sketch presentations have been described as "A blast!", "Dennis Miller meets pictionary!", and "More fun than Mark Russell with a magic marker and a flipchart!"
